Project Description

The project will extend over an area of approximately 14.67 hectare and envisions producing 10,000 tons of eco-friendly azo pigments and high-grade acid dyes annually. In Phase II, this will be extended by production of 3,000 tons of dyestuff and pigment intermediates.

The completion of the project will have great significance and a far-reaching impact in many respects. First, it will address concerns about the shortage of high-quality, high-end dyes and pigments on the domestic and foreign market. Secondly, high-performance R&D and production can take the Chinese share of the international market for dyes and pigments to new heights. At the same time, this development is likely to increase the employment prospects for hundreds of people, thus actively promoting the economic prosperity and growth of the Longqiwan Zone in Jinzhou City.
